

ODDITIES IN NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

New Yorker Finds Queen Mele of Egypt, Who Quilt Society Several Centuries Ago—Is Horrified to Discover the Lady Had Been Robbed.

Old stories reported from all points of the compass to-day include these: Theodore M. Davis, of New York, has found Queen Mele, an elderly lady of Egypt, who has not been in society much for several seasons. In fact, she has not attended the Egyptian court for a good many centuries. Mr. Davis was much horrified when one of the men who were with him when the Queen was located notified him that she had been robbed. Mr. Davis investigated and came to the conclusion that the man had been reading about the Brooklyn and Harlem robberies of late until he was effecting his mind.

RAREBIT DREAM IS RESCUER OF FOUR.

One of those much-abused Welsh rarebits saved four lives. Policeman Henry Greer, of No. 74 East One Hundred and Sixty-third street, this city, ate a rarebit and retired. A dentist walked up to him and began to pull a tooth, but it hurt so bad the bluescent thought he ought to have something to ease the pain. "Well, I'll give you a little," said the dentist.

"LEMON POOL" MEN MET FRANK HOPPE.

Frank Hoppe, brother of Willie Hoppe, the brilliant champion, was the victim of two "lemon pool" men last evening. It was while he was waiting for a new set of the Brooklyn Bridge that two fellows picked him out as an easy thing and invited him to have a drink. He took it. They wanted to play pool. He said it was against the rules of his Sunday-school to play in a pool room, but if they wouldn't tell on him he'd play while they were there.

CARNEGIE WANTED TO BE A REPORTER.

Andrew Carnegie says he wanted to be a newspaper reporter when he was a young man. He saw in his dreams a beautifully decorated office, perched with the perfume of peace, and desired above all other things to mount the platonic plane by way of the lead pencil, but in an unguarded moment went into the iron business and managed to forget his young ambition as the pie iron turned to gold. He told the Peace Society of New York about it in a letter.

JACK FROST NIPS LEMONS IN SPAIN.

Spain has had such cold weather recently that her lemon crop is ruined, but she will not miss the fruit very much now, as she is hardly in position to hand out any of it since the late unpleasantness. It never was so cold around Madrid as this week. At Barcelona the chill was so severe that leading storekeepers had to quit making dumplings because of cold fingers.

CUT DIVIDENDS TO PAY FOR ACCIDENT.

The Salisbury (England) railway disaster, which killed a number of Americans, affected the railway company differently than such accidents affect American roads. The stockholders have been informed that their dividends will be cut considerably in order to pay damage claims.

OLD-TIME CIRCUS.

Company H, Tenth Regiment (Eleventh Separate Company), White Plains, N. Y., is holding its society circus this week at the Army, Fifth avenue and North street. All the features of the old-time circus will be embraced in the entertainment.
